

EDHEC Business School forms academic partnership with China's prestigious Tsinghua University

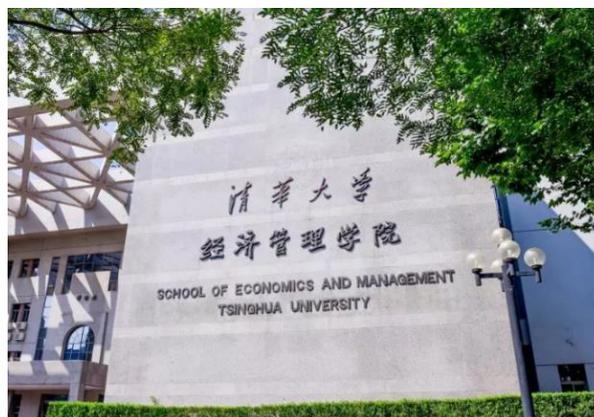

Press release

Paris, 18 November 2019 – EDHEC Business School is pleased to announce that it has signed an academic exchange agreement on behalf of its Master in Management programme with the School of Economics and Management, Tsinghua University (Tsinghua SEM) in Beijing, China.

Tsinghua University is one of the most prestigious and influential universities in the People's Republic of China. Founded in 1911, it comprises 20 schools and 58 departments, including faculties of science, engineering, economics, business, human sciences, law, medicine, history and philosophy. The university ranked 43rd globally and 3rd in Asia in the most recent Shanghai rankings.¹

The exchange agreement will apply to the Master's programmes of both institutions. It will allow students in the first year of EDHEC's Master in Management programme, Business Management track, to participate in an academic exchange in Beijing in their second semester, while students from Tsinghua SEM can join EDHEC's Master's programme in Lille or in Nice.

"This new agreement gives our students another opportunity for an exceptional study abroad experience in China, a destination in increasing demand," said Richard Perrin, Associate Dean International Relations at EDHEC Business School. "The latest partnerships signed with Tsinghua University, the University of St. Gallen, King's College London and with UC Berkeley Haas School of Business epitomize EDHEC's international strategy based on developing a powerful network of prestigious universities around the world."
